JAPANESE

Department

Japanese has a reputation as a challenging language to learn, but potentially offers many rewards — from new insights into a wealth of culture to business ties with the world's fourth-largest economy.

Occupations

Thanks to California's connections with Japan, business demand is strong for Japanese translators and localization managers, as well as trade specialists. As a popular destination among Japanese visitors, the local hospitality industry also offers opportunities for Japanese speakers.

- · Interpreters and translators
- Concierges
- · Import/export managers
- · Journalists and broadcasters
- · Video game designers
